

Call for Papers

7th International Conference on Humanities and Social Sciences 2025 (HUSO2025)

October 04-05, 2025, | Toronto, Canada

The 7th International Conference on Humanities and Social Sciences (HUSO2025) invites scholars, researchers, and practitioners from across the globe to submit their papers for presentation at our upcoming conference, set to take place in 2025. As our world faces rapid changes and unprecedented challenges, the role of humanities and social sciences has never been more crucial. We aim to bring together a diverse community to explore, discuss, and address the critical issues shaping our societies today.

This year, we are especially interested in papers that engage with contemporary issues and the latest research trends. We welcome submissions on a range of topics, including but not limited to the following sub-themes:

Digital Humanities and Big Data

Exploring how digital methodologies and big data are revolutionizing the study of culture, history, and human behavior in the humanities.

Migration, Displacement, and Human Rights

Examining the socio-political dynamics of migration and displacement, focusing on human rights, policies, and the lived experiences of affected communities.

Social media, Identity, and Politics

Investigating how social media platforms influence identity, political behavior, and cultural trends, with a focus on both challenges and transformative potentials.

Gender, Equity, and Empowerment

Addressing global and local efforts to achieve gender equity, combat discrimination, and empower all genders in education, the workplace, and society.

Mental Health and Socio-Cultural Perspectives

Understanding mental health within cultural and social frameworks, exploring how societal factors affect well-being and access to mental health support.

Post-Pandemic Social Transformations

Analyzing the shifts in work, education, and daily life following the COVID-19 pandemic, and how societies are adapting to these changes.

Business, Banking, and International Trade

Examining economic trends, resilience strategies, and technological advancements in global business, finance, and cross-border trade.

Social Justice and Civic Engagement

Exploring the role of social justice movements, community engagement, and activism in shaping inclusive, equitable societies.

Economic Inequality and Social Mobility

Investigating the root causes of economic inequality and the policies that may improve social mobility and economic opportunity.

Cybersecurity, Privacy, and Digital Rights

Addressing the growing challenges of cybersecurity, privacy, and digital rights in an increasingly interconnected and data-dependent world.

Submission Guidelines

We invite submissions of research papers, case studies, literature reviews, and theoretical contributions that align with the conference themes. Each submission should present original work that contributes to academic and/or practical knowledge in the field.

- Abstract Deadline: August 30, 2025
- Full Paper Deadline: September 30, 2025
- Notification of Acceptance: Within 5 working days of submission

All accepted papers will be published in the conference proceedings, and selected papers may be invited for submission to official journal. We look forward to receiving your contributions and welcoming you to a vibrant exchange of ideas at HUSO2025.
